Vitor Hugo Balasco holds a BSc, MSc, and Ph.D. in Biomolecular Physics from the University of São Paulo, Brazil, and NeCEN at Leiden University, Netherlands. From 2013 to 2015, he served as a Lecturer in the Physics Department at the Federal University of São Carlos. Following this, he was awarded the Louis Perry Jones Fellowship at Harvard Medical School and later received the prestigious Banting Research Fellowship at the University of Toronto, Canada. He currently serves as the Director of the Biomolecular Cryo-Electron Microscopy Facility at UC Santa Cruz.