Giulia is a Professor of Teaching at UC Santa Cruz, where she develops and teaches undergraduate courses in molecular biology, genetics and physiology and a graduate course in STEM Pedagogy, and works on curriculum, graduate student and faculty development projects in an outside her department. Giulia is passionate about bringing teaching and learning science into STEM classrooms to support significant learning and student success.