

Jimmy Perrott is an Automation Field Application Scientist at Watchmaker Genomics, specializing in the company's advanced DNA and RNA portfolios. His background includes nearly a decade at Illumina, where he focused on product development for targeted enrichment products and provided critical automation support in the on-market phase. Jimmy has hands-on experience with a variety of automation platforms, including Beckman, Hamilton, and Revvity, and is dedicated to using these technologies to streamline genomic research processes.